DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 4 March 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.
2. Applicant argues that, "The holding rack of Takeyama is enclosed on three sides and only provides access from the front side." And that Takeyama does not disclose, "a side defining at least one further access orifice," as recited in claims 1, 18, 19, and 20. Examiner respectfully disagrees. Both major sides of air permeable surfaces 51, 52, 53, and 9 have a plurality of holes. While admittedly, the holes are too small to allow insertion of most laundry articles, as taught in the present specification, it is noted that such a limitation is not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). Therefore, as the holes are large enough to serve as access orifices for smaller articles, such as the fingers of a user, as well as allowing access for air, it is deemed that the holes meet the broad claim limitation of, "at least one further access orifice."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-5, 8, and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Japanese Patent 4,307,096 to Takeyama.
3. Takeyama teaches a laundry dryer with rotatable drum 1 and stationary drying rack comprising gridded surfaces bottom 51, sides 52, rear 53, and top 9 wherein the side and rear surfaces are connected to one another by pivoting hinges 55, enabling inner access at all surface edges, and the rack is connected to the drum with fastening devices 8. Note Figures 2, 3, and 8 and the first full paragraph of page 3 of Applicant's Remarks filed 2 September 2004.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takeyama, as applied to claim 8 above.
6. Takeyama does not teach the thickness ratio claimed. However, such a limitation would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

7. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takeyama as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of US Patent 6,374,644 to Rhode et al.

8. Takeyama does not teach surfaces with netting and a frame. Rhode et al. teaches a similar laundry rack comprising opposing parallel planes 22 and 20 formed of a wire mesh with a frame. Note column 5, lines 46-55 and Figure 1. As Rhode et al. teaches that mesh with a frame will provide a safe and effective barrier for laundry being treated in a rotary drum, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the drying rack of Takeyama with the opposing surfaces comprised of mesh and frame taught by Rhode et al.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claims 6, 7, 11-17, and 21 are allowed.

Conclusion

10. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any
